

PRIVACY POLICY

Our Privacy Policy was developed as an extension of our total commitment to providing the highest-quality medical products, services and solutions together with the highest levels of integrity and service in dealing with our customers and distributors.

Steriatics is totally committed to protecting the privacy of our customers. The information that we collect is utilized solely for processing orders and providing customer support. Steriatics has implemented the necessary physical and electronic safeguards for securing your information. In addition, all emails and newsletters from Steriatics permit you to easily and quickly opt out.

Steriatics uses neither Flash nor tracking cookies to collect or store any information about customers or visitors to our website.

Steriatics does not sell, trade, or rent your personal information to other companies or agencies. If requested, we may share information with governmental agencies or other entities to assist us in fraud prevention or investigations. Steriatics may share customer information under the following circumstances: (A) where permitted or required by law; (B) cooperating with the appropriate authorities to protect against or prevent either actual or potential fraud, or unauthorized transactions; or, (C) investigating existing fraudulent actions. None of the information is ever provided to these agencies or other companies for marketing or other purposes.
